Ch 145.2

Deployment (Part 2)

After Long Yi Hai left, Shang Xiao quickly asked, "Older Sister Shu Qing, what about me? What do I need to do?"

Patting Shang Xiao's serious cheek, Shu Qing smiled and replied, "Your business is the most important thing."

"What is it?" Shang Xiao hurriedly sat up straight, while her heart thumped heavily after she heard the words 'the most important thing'.

Seeing her serious attitude, Shu Qing laughed and replied, "Prepare food for everyone!"

"Just that?" Shang Xiao was a little disappointed.

Shu Qing said seriously, "Don't think that this is unimportant. For the rations of 3,000 people, you need to prepare at least five days' supply. Now that Tian Cheng City is under martial law, it will not be easy to bring in that much food!"

Yes, food was the foundation of everything, so Shang Xiao nodded vigorously and replied, "Okay, leave the matter of bringing food to me."

Helping Shu Qing get up, Shang Xiao pointed at Shu Qing's stomach and teased, "I'll take you back to the room to rest first, and then have the kitchen prepare some food for you, because you can't starve him!"

"Okay." With Shang Xiao's help, the two moved all the way until they walked to the garden, when they saw Xuanyuan Yi who was hurriedly approaching, so Shang Xiao smiled and said, "Older Brother Xuanyuan."

Nodding to her, Xuanyuan Yi took Shu Qing lightly in his arms and asked worriedly, "Are you tired?"

Shu Qing smiled and shook her head; neither of them said much, but the warmth of hugging each other was already enviable. As they were walking silently beside each other, and looking at Older Sister's Shu Qing's soft smile, Shang Xiao lowered her head. Older Sister Shu Qing finally found her own happiness, but she had selfishly involved her in this fierce battle, so the guilt that emerged in her heart almost drowned her. She finally walked to the next wing, as Shang Xiao said in a low voice, "This is your room. Older Sister Shu Qing, you take a good rest and the food will be delivered soon."

After saying that, Shang Xiao turned around quickly, but Shu Qing gently grabbed her wrist and sighed, as Shu Qing said, "Xiao Xiao, you have done nothing wrong, if you didn't go and find me, Jun may really have had a mishap. If that did happen instead, then I would have blamed you. I am fine now and the child is also fine. I hope that not only am I happy, but you and Jun are also happy. You understand this, right?!"

Feeling the warmth of Shu Qing's palm, Shang Xiao nodded vigorously, but could not answer any word, as she was afraid that tears would flow out to her dismay.

Ugh... These two sisters just like to take on everything themselves; Jun was like this, and she was like this too. Patting Shang Xiao's hand, Shu Qing deliberately teased, "Okay, don't say those stupid things or think about anything in the future. If you want to think about something, think about what delicious food that you can give me and Jun as good supplements!"

"Yeah. I'm going to prepare something for you to eat." Taking a deep breath, Shang Xiao finally squeezed out a weak smile and hurried to the direction of the kitchen.

Xuanyuan Yi helped Shu Qing into the room, sat down at the table as he held her hand tightly, and asked anxiously, "What's wrong, tell me?"

How often had this resolute and domineering man had such a flustered expression?! She also held Xuanyuan Yi's hand, as if comforting his heart and giving him the feeling of warmth. Then, putting his hand lightly on her stomach, Shu Qing smiled and said, "I'm just a little tired. I just need to rest for a while, but now I'm fine."

Feeling Shu Qing's steady breathing, Xuanyuan Yi's heart slowly returned to normal.

Leaning on Xuanyuan Yi, Shu Qing asked in a low voice, "Have you got the thing?"

"Here." He took out a piece of plain white brocade more than three feet long from his sleeve and spread it out on the round table. The huge map of the tunnel was dense but orderly with branches and the designs of the exit of the secret tunnel. It was numerous, almost covering the main roads of Tian Cheng City, and there were even underground palaces. Each side branch was relatively independent. Even if the enemy found the entrance, they could simply block a few points, which could prevent the enemy from sweeping it all at once. It was a complex and delicate internal structure, and without blueprints, it would be very easy to get lost when they entered into it.

Xuanyuan Yi was a general and even he was fascinated by it. He could not help but sigh, "It's so delicate, this was definitely a big project."

"Yeah." Shu Qing was also amazed at the tunnel map in front of her, but after a while, Shu Qing's face showed a little melancholy. As she looked at Xuanyuan Yi, his brows were also wrinkled tight together, so Shu Qing smiled and asked, "What are you thinking about?"

Wrapping around Shu Qing's no longer slender waist again, Xuanyuan Yi sighed in a low voice, "It's the same thing as what you're thinking."
